This Was Pathetic.

Our little Willie in the best of sashes,
Fell in the fire and burned to ashes,
Suddenly the air grew chilly,
But no one dared to poke up Willie.

The Observer.

If the will is the determining factor in belief, it is also powerful in guiding and controlling emotion. The "will to believe" suggests, the "will to feel," which is an idea that perhaps runs counter to some of our preconceived notions. Just as there is a wide spread impression that we are not responsible for our beliefs, so there is an impression, equally wide-spread, that we are not responsible for our feelings. The Observer last week, attempted to show the baselessness of the first assumption; he will endeavor now to expose the fallacy of the second.

It is true that the hand of arbitrary and violent compulsion cannot be laid upon our emotions. Mere force and will power on the part of a gardener cannot cause the tendrils of a vine to cling instantly to wall or post. Mere force connot compel a child to like the thiugs which he ought to like, or to feel sorrow and shame for his misdeeds. Emotion can no more be forced through a sheer effort of will than can a cubit be added to one's stature through a mere taking of thought. But indirectly and mediately emotion may be trained and controlled to an extent almost unlimited. By understanding the nature of emotion and by taking advantage of the laws which govern it, we may develop and control it with a success equal to that of Mr. Luther Burbank in his remarkable achievements with plants.

The great law of emotion is that we like that to which we have become accustomed. It is this law that explains why, "be it ever so humble, there is no place like home." It explains the hold upou us of familiar faces and scenes and occupations. Let two persons associate closely together for a length of time, or even for a short time under unusual circumstances, and a sense of comradeship will be developed between them which years of subsequent absence from each other may not wholly efface. Romantic love between the sexes is apt to prove evanescent and is in itself a poor guarantee of the permanence of the marriage bond; but the association of husband aud wife in the home, and the close community of their interests, may be relied upon, in the great majority of cases, to develop in each for the other, an affection that is both deep and enduring.

The way to take advantage of the aw that we like that towhich we are accustomed, is to accustom ourselves to that which we ought to like. Our environment and associations are largely a matter of our own making. The actual world of men and things, which surrounds us, is so complex and multifarious, that no one can be in responsive touch with the whole of it. The world as it exists for each individual is merely a sort of personal selection of certain persons and things out of the great totality of the reai world. One's world is really therefore an expressian of his own character and choice. He who puts himself in association with what is evil and accustoms himself, to it, is himself responsible for his resulting love of the evil and repugnance towards the good. Our associations and the likings and loves which spring out of them should wait upon a high purpose and ideal. We should learn to love what we ought to love. The law that we like what we are accustomed to, applies to the word of ideals as well as to the world of acuality. If we accustom ourselves to thoughts of "the things that are more excellent," we shall grow more and more to like those things, and to grow into the likeness of them.

To one who is enslaved to some particular vice, the opposite virtue may seem hard and repellent. But let him cherish the thought of that virtue, and gradually he will come to love it. It is possible, in no hypocritical sense, to assume a virtne if we have it not. If one accustoms himself to think aud speak kindly, even when the inward feeling is anything but kindly, the habit of kindly feeling itself will surely grow upon him. Mere emotion in not an end in itself but only a means to an end. If, as oftens happens, a passing emotion stands in the light of our higher purpose and duty, we have a rtght to deny and disregard the passing emotion, which to all intents is a traitor to our real self, and to assume the presence of the emotion which would reflect our true thought and intention.

Burglary.

Last Saturday night Robert Dodson's drug store was broken into and a number of razors and knives stolen. The party or parties gained entrance through the Chestnut street door in the same manner as the parties who robbed him several years ago.

Supper.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will serve supper at the church, Thursday evening, Aug. 10th at five o'clock. Supper 35c.

Dance.

There will a dance given on the Rich Valley platform, Friday evening, August 19th. The public is cordially invited to attend; a good time will be enjoyed by all. Don't miss it.

Sold Out.

H. E. Shade, who has conducted the St Charles Hotel at this place for some time, has sold out his interest in that hostelry to Patrick Kilday, of Port Allegany, who will take charge of the house next week.

Lawn Social.

An ice cream social will be held on the lawn of the Baptist parsonage on Saturday night next, Aug 12. If it should be stormy the social will be held at the Reading Rooms. Public cordially invited.

Accidently Kills Nephew.

Renn Christian, the nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Christian of Renovo, who had been visiting his grand parents, Mr. Hiram Moat and family at Mix Run, was accidently shot and instantly killed, by his uncle Albert Moat, aged 19 years, who was handling a revolver, Tuesday, August the 2nd.

Fire.

Last Thursday evening about 8:30 o'clock, the residence of Franklin Housler was discovered to be on fire, the alarm was given and the boys soon had the fire subdued. The fire started from a lamp in the kitchen, which had been sitting too close to the wall. Considerable damage was done to the building.

Rev. Mr. Bower to Leave.

The Rev. H. C. Bower, preacher in charge of the Cameron Circuit, appeared before the Missionary Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church in New York City last week and having passed a satisfactory examination was accepted as a Missionary to India.

In a school of over seven hundred native pupils, he will be a teacher and will serve as pastor of an English church. His successor has not yet been named

Located in Emporium.

Mr. J. Paul Felt, son of our respected townsman, Mr. J. P. Felt, has located in Emporium permanently, being associated with Mr. B. W. Green. Mr. Felt is a graduate of University of Pennsylvania Law Department and has practiced in Philadelphia since his graduation. There is something peculiar about Emporium, for once a resident of our beautiful little mountain city all are satisfied to return. We think Mr. Felt has made a wise choice and hope he may realize his fondest expectations.

Coming Conferences on Divorce.

One good result of recent agitations in religious conventions and assemblies of the question how to remedy or stay the growing evil of divorce, has been the direction of attention to this subject by federal and state executives and legislatures. At the invitation of Governor Pennypacker, there will shortly be held in Washington a conference of representatives appointed by the governors of the several states, constituting the National Divorce Law Commission. The purpose of this conference, as indicated by Governer Pennypacker, is to promote uniuniformity of divorce legislation. The Governor has expressed himself strongly in favor of limiting the number of recognized causes of divorce.

This conference will follow a conference of a national commission on the same subject, at Narraganset Pier, August 18th.

This is, we believe, the first time that organized attention has ever been given to this subject outside of church conventions. The public sentiment against the scandalous and alarming frequency of divorce is growing rapidly; and it is reasonable to hope that these coming conferences will result in a long stride towards uniformity of sane and conservative divorce laws among the several states.

Eye Specialist.

Prof. W. H. Budine, the well known Eye Specialist, of Binghamton, N. Y., will be at R. H. Hirsch's jewelry store, Emporium, Pa, August 12th. If you can't see well or have headache don't fail to call and see Prof. Budine, as he guarantees to cure all such cases. Lenses ground and fitted in old frames. Eyes tested and examined free. All work guaranteed.

A Trip Down the County.

Cameron county has several fine gingseng gardens well started. One good one up North Creek and three at Sinnamahoning. Mr. Krebs of Sinnamahoning has a very fine garden, nearly half of which is ready to dig this fall. Cameron county is a natural home for genseng, much of it growing in the woods wild. This is now getting scarce and I think persons having only a little land will do well to set out a few roots, as prices are still showing upward tendencies.

There is much said about cultivated roots not being salable, or bringing lower prices than the wild root, but Vice Consul Cloud, Hangchua, China, does not even hint at this in his report on ginseng, but on the other hand classes Americrn grown ginseng as being third class, that is, Hsi yang shen, known as "foreign ginseng." Now as there are five varieties of ginseng, and American being third, I get considerable encouragement from the report. Of course we cannot compete with the genuine Manchuria root, "Lao-shan-yieh shen" selling at $135.00 per one and one third ounce; but grade five, Korea, sells at 35c per one and one-third ounce; while the "foreign," American brings 65c to 70c per one and one-third ounce. These prices are gold. Our 70c looks small by the side of the Manchuria grade, coming from Kirin, but it is not as small as the Korean 35c. There was a small lot of cultivated roots shipped from New York that the Chinese refused as being under grade. These roots were spoiled by fertilizing so heavy as to spoil the flavor. Growers should learn a lesson from this.

Being interested in the ginseng industry, I went down to Sinnamahoning to see the ginseng gardens there. Never having been over the roads before, I naturally inquired whether I would find rough riding down that way, and from the inquiries I made, I was at loss to know whether to go by train or by wheel, but finally chanced the wheel. Leaving Emporium at eight o'clock, I passed through as fine scenery and over as good roads as I would ever wish to find. Stopping on the hill-tops to view the beautiful scenery and to pick what huckleberries I could eat, I did not arrive at Sinnamahoning until half past eleven. This being my first trip over the road, there was too much for me to see to make any kind of time, but not on account of poor roads, as I made the return trip in one hour and a half.

Over this route there are long stretches of the finest kind of road, but there are also short stony pieces and sharp curves that could easily be made much better by using a little dynamite and a little work. I expect these places would jar a buggy some in passing over them.

Arriving at Sinnamahoning I have never met a more friendly or accommodating people, in fact all the people I met going or coming were as fine hospitable people as can be found in the state. My motor-cycle excited some curosity along the road and as Driftwood and Sinnamahoning, and I was asked many questions as to how I managed to handle it, but could not induce anybody to take a ride on it. Gasolene is kept for sale at Driftwood, so autos need not be afraid to go down that way, but I expect some of those stony places below Sterling Run would shake up anything that went on four wheels, but these places are very short and soon over.

On this trip I saw four rabbits and one pheasant, showing a good outfor game this fall. With the scenery along this route, and game in the roads, it ought to be a fine trip for the amateur photographer, and, if they are used as well as I was, they would not stop at one trip, for I certainly was never treated better in my life, than by the people along this route.

Of Household Interest.

Housecleaning is not the pleasantest of the housekeeper's tasks, but none the less necessary on that account. In the September Delineator Isabel Gordon Curtis offers in her series, "The Making of a Housewife," some suggestions that will tend to lighten the labor and lessen the disagreeableness of this household duty. Other items of domestic interest in the same number are illustrated cookery and a variety of recipes under the topics "Delicious Cream Jellies," "Decorative Color Salads" and "The Potato." In addition, Alice M. Kellogg explains "How to Select Finishing Hardware" and Ward MacLeod writes on "Growing Bulbs Indoors."

Two Women Locked Up.

On Tuesday evening, Chief of Police Mundy arrested Charles Irvin, who was in company with Esther Mundy, widow of the late Jas. Mundy, and Emma Dezal, all of whom had imbibed too freely of bad whisky, and proceeded with him to the lockup, but the Mundy woman followed and became so offensive, that the chief had to take charge of her. The woman then opened up her abuse in a most disgraceful manner, but her and Irvin were soon landed in the borough lockup. Later in the evening the Dezal woman again made her appearance and she too was put away to sober up.

On Wednesday morning they were given a hearing before Squire Larrabee, who fined Irvin $7.00 and the women $5.00 each, which fine they refused to pay and as a result, at this writing, they are still locked up. The women have visited here a number of times, but this is the first time they have been fortunate enough to stop where the bill of fare and other accommodations are so elaborate.

Coming Attractions.

Manager T. J. Butler, of the Emporium Opera House, gives the information that he has signed contracts, which will result in the conversion of the Opera House into a high-class theatre this coming season, and, will open Aug. 30th, with the original New York production of "When Knighthood was in Flower."

Among the plays and players booked for the coming season are: Olie Olson; The Village Parson; The Sign of the Cross; Culhane, Chace & Weston's Minstrels; Miss Elnor Mortimer in "Echos from Broadway;" Chester DeRose Co., in "Hearts Astray;" Dora Thorne; A Country Boy in New York; The Holy City; A Millionaire Tramp; Over Niagara Falls; Arthur Vall in "The New Bell Boy;" A Royal Slave; Nothing But Money; The Little Outcast; The King of Rogues, and Edward N. Hoyt in "Hamlet" one of Shakespere's famous plays.

Death of Mrs. A. W. Baker.

Word was received in Emporium last Sunday morning of the death of Mrs. Annie Shrimp Baker, wife of our former townsman, Albra W. Baker, M. D., at their home in Williamsport, at 9:35 o'clock, Saturday evening. The interment took place in Wildwood Cemetery Williamsport, on Tuesday morning. Mrs. Baker had long been a sufferer from chronic rheumatism; and it was in the hope that a change of residence might prove benefical to her, that Dr. Baker was induced to remove to Williamsport two years ago. This hope was sadly disappointed, for within a few months after their removal unmistakable symptoms of an alarming nature developed, and since then she was almost continually at death's door.

Dr. and Mrs. Baker were residents of Emporium for ten years, and both were held in the highest esteem of our people. So deep was the hold which they gained upon the affection and life of the community that the lapse of two years has diminished naught from it. Mrs. Baker's personality was singularly lovable, and winsome. Her example of wifely devotion; her true-hearted, sympathetic interest in others; her ministrations to those in suffering and distress; her friendship for the friendless; her love for the children of her acquaintance, and her extraordinary power of winning their affection and of influencing them for good; and her labors in the Suuday school, and other activities, of Emmanuel Parish, of which her husband was a vestryman; will be held in grateful and lasting remembrance.

Lulu Miller Dead.

Miss Lulu Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Miller, of Castle Garden, died at the residence of her parents on Monday, aged 24 years. The young lady was taken sick last Friday and was not considered dangerous but on Monday at three o'clock she passed away. The lady is well spoken of by all who knew her. The funeral took place from the home and interment was made in the Castle Garden cemetery yesterday afternoon, and was very largely attended.

At a recent meeting of the State Forestry Commission the following resolution was adopted:

"Rule No. 16. All grazing of horses, cattle, sheep, goats and hogs upon the State Forestry Reservations is prohibited."

This rule will at once be posted on State lands and at once become operative, as per Sec 1, of Act of March 11, 1903 and the penalty for its violation will be found in Sec. 2, of the Act of February 25, 1901, which, is a fine of not less than $100.00 nor more than $500.00.

There will be a dance given on Wednesday evening Aug. 16 The proceeds go towards buying new uniforms for the base ball team Tickets $1.00, refreshments extra. All invited.

Young men and women who are thinking of teaching or wish to get a general education will find it to advantage to write to J. George Becht, principal of the Clarion State Normal School, Clarion, Pa.

Considerable excitement was caused last evening about 8:30 by the alarm of fire which proved to be a box car back of Shives' barn. The fire was soon put out, after our people found there were no explosives near.

General Roy Stone, veteran of the Civil and Spanish-American Wars, died at his home in Mendham, N. J., on Sunday, aged 69 years. Deceased was a resident of Stuben county, N. Y., and served in the Civil War in the 149th Pennsylvania Infantry and First Pennsylvania Rifles.

The Knights of the Maccabees in this county will be interested to learn that the members of the order in Pittsburg and other parts of the State are going to keep up the legal fight against the increase of rates that has attracted widespread interest, which now is decided against them but will be taken to a higher court.—Wellsboro Gazette.

The Medix Run correspondent in the Ridgway Advocate says: Recently our two hotels have secured their license, and again are doing a rushing business. The management of these hotels under the supervision of Mr. Martindale on the New York side, and Mike Hackett on the Brooklyn side, render them without a doubt, two of the best hotels in the county.

A Buffalo dispatch of August 1, says: "The Pittsburg, Shawmut & Northern Railroad Company was placed in the hands of a receiver to-day by Justice Kenefick. The company was defaulted in the payment of interest on $15,000,000 bonds. Frank Sullivan Smith, of Angelica, was appointed receiver, and the bond was fixed at $100,000.

"Babes, Birds and Blossoms, a Morning in the Midst of Them" will be Rev. L. B. Twichell's topic at the Baptist church in the morning service on Sunday. The church will be decorated, many birds and babies will be there and the pastor will preach a sermon in simple sentences. Cordial welcome is extended. Baptist Sunday School will attend.

Base Ball.

There will be a game of ball between the Old Leaguers of Renovo and the Emporium team at the Keystone Park, next Saturday the 12th, game to be called at three o'clock. All lovers of this great American game should see it as this promises to be a good one.

* * *

A very interesting (?) and exciting game of ball was played at Keystone Park last Friday, by the Y. M. I. Jrs., of St. Marys and the "Steenth Team" of this place. The score resulted in a victory for St. Marys, 15 to 6. By a glance at the score book, the Emporium team must have put up a snappy article of ball juggling, only making 21 errors, while St. Marys had the honor of making but half that number. While we do not profess to know the many different terms for plays, but one player is credited with three "navy yard" home runs, while in the grand total of runs his record shows but one score. We confess we dislike to publish the tabulated account of the game owing to the humiliation it might cause some of the boys. Try it again.

* * *

The base ball team went to Port Allegany on Saturday and defeated that team by a score of 10 to 4. Orvis Hemphill had his eye on the ball—out of four times up, had a home run, a two bagger, and a single, making three of the eight hits made by the Emporium team. Orvis is always there with the goods and is one of the best players on our team.

The National Flower.

Arrangements are being made by the Ladies' Society of Emmanuel church, for the production at an early date of a pleasing operetta, entitled "The National Flower." This operetta, which will be given under the direction of the author, Mr. John Sinclair, organist of Grace Church Ridgway, is an adaptation of Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Trial By Jury." Various flowers, represented by classes of girls, compete for recognition as the national flower of America, their claims being heard before a jury of eighteen musical matrons. The parts of Uncle Sam, the oak, the onion, etc., require baritone and bass interpretation. Nearly one hundred voices will be required.

Papers sent out of the county must be paid for in advance.

The New Hampshire state board of health has recently issued a "sanitary bulletin" containing the results of analysis made of foodstuffs sold in that state. Out of 363 articles purchased, consisting of canned goods, baking powders, meat products, spices, jellies, jams, etc., more than 45 per cent. were found to contain adulterations. Of the 32 samples of canned fruits, jellies and jams examined, 29, or 91 per cent. were found to be in this degree defective.

The railroads of the United States require 620,000,000 wooden crossties, and every year 100,000,000 new ties must be cut. This strips annually 200,000 acres of perfectly wooded ground; it actually scars many times that area. With the tremendous demands of the paper makers, the mining engineers, the builders and a thousand more users of wood, it is no wonder that the railroads are forced to go further and further away from their lines to get their ties. In vain have they tried to substitute metal.

The Pugent Sound navy yard, located at Bremerton, Wash., is rapidly becoming the nation's most important naval base, owing to the increase of international interest in the "Far East," and to its being the nearest station to the Philippines. Futhermore, the authorities have recently made public the result of a preliminary survey, which developed the fact that Uncle Sam can start a fleet of warships from Puget Sound for the sphere of the present Russo-Japanese war and stop them every night in an American port until they reach the east coast of Asia just north of Japan.

Sea Island cotton is the best kind. It is finer and silkier than any other cotton in the world. A pound of it can be spun into 4,770 miles of thread. For an experiment once in the English town of Manchester a skilled spinner spun a pound of Sea Island cotton into a single thread 1,000 miles long. Then for another experiment he took another pound of cotton and spun it into as many hanks as he could get. He got 10,000 hanks in all, and the yarn in each of them measured 840 yards. Thus out of a pound of cotton 4,770 miles of yarn was produced, but too fine to be of any practical utility.

Although a majority of the men in this country have three names, an unusual proportion of those who attain eminence in public life have only two. Take the recent cabinet changes as an illustration: Paul Morton resigned, John Hay died and Elihu Root is to return to the cabinet. No middle name in any of these cases. Of 25 men who have held the office of president only seven have had more than two names. Of the 26 vice presidents 13 have had two names and 13 have had three. The United States supreme court has had eight chief justices, four with two names, four with three.

Never before in the history of this land has nature opened her cornucopia more generously and poured out greater plenty. The west has a record-breaking wheat crop that is taxing her labor to the fullest to harvest. And it takes less of it to make a barrel of flour than in previous years. The south has a good cotton crop coming on, and the growers are taking ten-cent cotton and prosperity. The corn crop of the country promises to be 300,000,000 bushels larger than ever before and worth something like $1,640,000,000 to the farmers.

A complete reorganization of affairs at Biltmore is to be made by George W. Vanderbilt. First and foremost Mr. Vanderbilt is to give up farming himself and is going to let somebody else do it for him. He has believed all along that his venture at Biltmore could be made to pay expenses or nearly so, but he has been disappointed. He considers that his experiment of ten years justifies him in changing his mind about the money there was to be made in farming. Farming has been a pastime with Mr. Vanderbilt, very agreeable, but most expensive.

The finances of Hayti are in a very bad shape. At present, the national debt amounts to nearly $35,000,000, upon which interest is payable to the extent of $2,000,000 annually. As this obligation is met rather irregularly, the time can not be far distant when some nation will feel called upon to intervene. Some make bold to say that the United States should be that nation. Hayti, it is claimed, would make a desirable addition to our colonial acquisitions. Those who have had opportunities to know allude to Hayti as the gem of the ocean.

PRINCIPLES OF DEMOCRATS

Merely the Declarations of Party Champions in Search of Place and Power.

Mr. Bryan, interviewed in St. Louis, expressed the opinion that the great success of Mr. Roosevelt in politics is due to the fact that he has stolen a number of democratic "principles." It would be interesting to know where he found them. And it would be interesting, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, for Mr. Bryan to tell the country where they are to be found. The vital principles of political parties are not merely the declaration of party representatives in national convention. With a party long out of power, its reiterated assertion of certain political tenets may entitle it to say that these constitute its principles of action, or would in the event of its elevation to power. During the long exile of democracy a generation of voters grew up in this country who were deluded, or deluded themselves into a belief that if the organization should ever attain to complete control of the government, it would inaugurate a new fiscal policy. Even the years of division and of legislative obstruction, growing out of the Morrison and Mills bills, could not shake the faith or dampen the ardor of these young men, whose courage and devotedness were surely worthy of a better fate. For no sooner was the party in position to redeem its pledges than it fell into hopeless uncertainty, constituting a menace which did more than any other thing to precipitate panic and continue depression.

When these men turned from old to newer issues and made Mr. Bryan the party leader, they found that it was impossible to unite the party on new lines as on old. Two campaigns were enough to demonstrate the fact that that party is without "principles," although its mass, like the mass of every party, favor methods of government contributing to a general welfare. But a democratic platform declaration may not be called a democratic "principle," as a republican platform declaration may, for the reason that, if intrusted with power, the democratic party cannot or will not resolve its declared purposes into action, as the republicans do. Doctrinaires may not recognize this distinction between the parties, but we can assure Mr. Bryan it is one which the people recognize as vital to them.

There is a popular belief in the honesty of Mr. Bryan, and a conviction in the public mind that if he and his followers should ever attain to the supreme power in this country they would, if they could, redeem their pledges and attempt to resolve into action their platform declarations. This is likely to make the attainment of complete power forever impossible to them. But beyond the fear of their sincerity, lies the fear, which is even greater, of the same sort of prolonged and disastrous uncertainty, hesitation doubt and faltering which came upon the country under Cleveland. For under Bryan, as under Cleveland, the party would inevitably split and be incapable of uniting on the policies it had advocated in the campaign. The democratic party stands now, in the public mind, as one not knowing what it wants.

POINT ABOUT FREE TRADE.

There Is Always a Flop When Americans Are to Be the Gainers by the Tariff.

Our free trade friends certainly are curious beings, and it is very difficult to satisfy them or pin them down to a consistent policy. Some one has proposed to put a duty on tea and coffee. The suggestion is merely tentative, and there is reason to doubt whether it would be favorably considered by the American people or acted upon by congress. But the mere mention of the matter throws the free traders into "conniption fits," says the Troy Times. Why? Until recently they were loud and emphatic in advocacy of a tariff for revenue only. And if a duty upon tea and coffee is not exclusively for revenue what is it? Not a pound of tea or coffee is produced in the United States. On the other hand, this country is one of the greatest consumers of these articles. A small duty upon tea or coffee, therefore, would provide a large revenue. But here is where the free trade joker comes in. Porto Rico though not an integral part of the United States, is now a possession of our government, and under decisions of the federal courts its products are admitted duty free. Porto Rico raises big crops of coffee—in fact, that article is one of its staples. A duty on coffee, which would affect the product of other countries, would be to the advantage of Porto Rico. And that accounts for the milk in the free trade cocoanut. As long as there is no shadow of protection to American interests and foreigners get the advantage the free trader favors a tariff for revenue. But when a little benefit is conferred upon Americans or those whom Americans have taken under their protection, how quickly a free trader can flop!

☞Mr. Bryan says he does not want to eliminate any democratic candidate for the presidency. The people will attend to the job when they reach it.

☞A decrease of $10,000,000 and more a month in the national debt is very satisfactory. Our interest bearing debt is now but $895,158,340, our entire debt being $1,282,357,094. Our two per cent. bonds are at a premium and we have a cash balance of $292,490,323. No such satisfactory condition of our finances is ever shown under a revenue tariff. Protection helps the public treasury as well as the people.

RECIPROCITY HAS A BASIS.

It Is Founded Upon the Principle That Bolsters Up Protection.

It is possible for even so stanch a craft as the stout ship G. O. P. to be wrecked on the reefs of reciprocity, that unknown and unexplored area of tariff reductions. The democrats are aware of this fact, and are trying to lure the good vessel to disaster by as ingenious a system of false buoys as was that contrived by Kipling's lighthouse keeper who went mad. The democrats have succeeded already in beguiling a part of the ships crew—those foolish men who style themselves revisionists, says the Portsmouth (N. H.) Chronicle.

Some of the Maine papers are defending reciprocity because the late James G. Blaine, "the man from Maine," occasionally used the term. "There is no doubt that there is a basis for reciprocity in harmony with protection," misleadingly remarks the Lewiston Journal. There is, and it is this very basis that we must not overlook. There is a boundary beyond which we must not pass. If we do, reciprocity becomes free trade pure and simple. James G. Blaine never advocated this. No American citizen with the interests of the American people at heart ever stood for "reciprocity" of this sort.

In the Bryan-McKinley campaign of 1900 the republican party in national convention convened declared for reciprocity confined to those "articles which we do not ourselves produce." This sort of reciprocity disturbs no principle of protection, but is especially subject to assault from the democratic party because it works havoc with the whole frail system of tariff for revenue only.

President McKinley's Buffalo speech in 1901 favored "reciprocity that will not injure any American industry." The present platform of the republican party declares for reciprocity that "will not injure any American industry." Reciprocity and protection go hand in hand up to this point, but once past it the former becomes the malignant enemy of the nation—free trade.

Republican papers should offset the democratic tommyrot about reciprocity by showing what it is. The majority of people do not understand the question fully, because only one side of it has been presented to them. Time and time again the American people have crushed the adder head of free trade as it rose to sting them. Does anyone imagine that they would be the less ready to do so now because it calls itself reciprocity?

CHIMERA AND PARADOX.

A Policy That Is Feasible Only Under Conditions That Are Favorable.

"Worldwide reciprocity" is in itself a paradox, a chimera. For the United States reciprocity is feasible only under certain special conditions. Reciprocity treaties can produce beneficial results only when there is such a dissimilarity between the products we have to sell and those we wish to buy as to make mutual concessions easy and logical, says the New York Tribune. We have an arrangement of this sort with Cuba, by which we give slight reductions on articles like tobacco and sugar, which we could buy whether the rates were lowered or not, and in return sell Cuba goods which she does not produce and which she could almost as readily import from European countries. There are other nations, chiefly in the tropics and subtropics, with which we could makee, perhaps, equally advantageous bargains.

But with the great producing nations of Europe we have not been able, and shall not be able, to conclude agreements which will yield equally indisputable benefits. We have had, and can have, commercial treaties which scratch the surface of our trade relations with our great industrial competitors. But we can never apply with them in detail any policy to give and take such as we have applied in the case of Cuba. The inherent difficulties of such a programme are too vast and its ultimate benefits are too doubtful to induce us to abandon the simpler and more practical method of laying tariffs to fit our own needs and enforcing them equally and impartially against our chief commercial rivals. Gov. Douglas' scheme of "world-wide reciprocity" is illusory. It will bear no more substantial fruit than his earlier project for imposing reciprocity on Canada against Canada's will.

Declaration by Bryan.

In politics three years is a long time and it is three years until 1908, when the next democratic national convention will assemble. Much may happen in that time. Parties may realign themselves. Political sentiment may change and men may change with it. So that the announcement that William Jennings Bryan will declare his candidacy for the democratiic presidential nomination is not significant of anything in particular. It may even be said that the declaration will be superfluous, since it is pretty well understood that Col. Bryan is a continuing candidate for the democratic nomination.—Chicago Chronicle.

☞Judge Parker denounces the tariff as the result of "an alliance between greed and politics." It must be said for the ex-judge that he has never been accused of either.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

☞There may be selfishness in our policy of protection to American industries, but it is the selfishness which has brought the standard of living higher in the United States than anywhere else in the world. This principle must be maintained; this standard will then maintain itself—Salem (Ore.) Statesman.

CELEBRATION AT THE SOO.

Fiftieth Anniversary of the Opening of the St. Mary's Ship Canal Is Celebrated.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Aug. 3.—With the city crowded with thousands of visitors, and with hundreds of yards of bunting flying in the breeze from all the buildings on both the American and Canadian sides of the St. Mary's river, a salute at sunrise from the government ships in the harbor opened the two days' celebration of the semi-centennial of the opening of the St. Mary's ship canal, which connects Lake Superior with the lower lakes.

Fifty years ago the first ship canal around the rapids in St. Mary's river was completed and opened, with two locks 350 feet in length and a depth of 13 feet. Now the American canal has two locks, one 515 feet long, the other 800 feet long and 21 feet deep, while there is also a Canadian lock 1,000 feet in length. More traffic passes through these three locks than through any similar waterway in the world. In 1904, 28,000 passengers were transported through the canal, and a total of 31,446,106 tons of freight with a value of $340,000,000.

The semi-centennial celebration and the erection later of a monument as a permanent memorial was made possible by the appropriation of $10,000 by the United States and $15,000 by the state of Michigan and the contribution of a considerable amount by the vessel interests of the Great Lakes.

Vice President Fairbanks, Gov. Warner, of Michigan, and his staff; Senator Burrows, of Michigan; Congressman Burton, of Ohio; Hon. William Livingstone, president of the Lake Carriers' association; Charles T. Harvey, of Toronto, who constructed the original locks, and Miss Betty Poe, daughter of Gen. O. M. Poe, who constructed the Poe locks, are among the distinguished visitors present at the celebration.

The first day was devoted to naval and military parades, an Indian exhibition and a reception by Gov. Warner to the other distinguished guests, followed by a magnificent exhibition of fireworks.

RUSSIA IS NOT WHIPPED.

M. Witte, the Peace Negotiator, Declares that Russia Is Still Able to Fight.

New York, Aug. 3.—Sergius Witte, the Russian peace plenipotentiary, on his arrival here Wednesday emphatically denied having said that Japan's peace terms were intolerable.

On shipboard M. Witte was generally reticent when the subject of his mission was mentioned. However, to an Associated Press correspondent who accompanied him from Cherbourg, M. Witte said: "Almost everywhere in Europe as well as in America not only Russia, her forces, her resources and her power of resistance are not known, but the people are even mistaken about the true results of the war. The Russians have had reverses, but this does not signify that they have lost the power which was known to the Moscovite empire before the war; it does not mean that the Japanese have acquired by result of recent victories such supremacy as to make the Russian empire consider them a truly redoubtable enemy."

M. Witte recognizes the good qualities of the Japanese military, naval and administration organizations and does not believe any other European nation would have been able to resist Japan as Russia has done. "It must be taken into consideration," said M. Witte, "that the Japanese had been preparing themselves for war for about ten years, while Russia was entirely unprepared.

"Even as things stand, the Japanese have not made such progress as is generally believed; in fact, they would have to advance four times as much as they have done in the last year and a half to reach Russia proper.

"But they are very far from this, and the more they advance north the more the respective conditions of the Russians and the Japanese will be reversed."

FEDERAL AID IS GRANTED.

The Government Will Take Charge of the Yellow Fever Fight.

Washington, Aug. 5.—President Roosevelt last night forwarded to Surgeon General Wyman, of the marine hospital service, a telegram from Gov. Blanchard, of Louisiana, requesting that the United States government take control of the yellow fever situation in New Orleans. The president directed the surgeon general to take every step in his power to meet the situation in New Orleans.

New Orleans, Aug. 5.—Fever report to 6 p. m. Friday.

A LOCKOUT OF TELEGRAPHERS

Men Employed by the Northern Pacific Railroad Co. Are Out of Work.

COMPANY ISSUED AN ULTIMATUM

The Men Could Either Accept the Terms Offered by the Company or Leave Its Service—Very Few Employes Remained at Work.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 2.—General Manager Horn, of the Northern Pacific railway, yesterday sent an order to all telegraph operators employed on the system from St. Paul to the Pacific coast that they could accept the terms of settlement of the wage questio offered by the company, or they could leave the service. Just how many men have refused to accept the company's terms is not yet known. After having issued the ultimatum to the men, Mr. Horn gave out the following statement:

"Mr. Perham, president of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, this morning advised me that he intends to go to the limit with both the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railways, just as soon as he thinks such a course necessary.

"When conferences started on July 12, strike instructions had already been in force for an entire week. Last Friday when we concluded negotiations they were still hanging over our heads. The road was in this position: Mr. Perham or his committee could inaugurate a strike of our telegraphers any time they saw fit. They would neither accept nor reject the company's proposition. This uncertainty the company could not put up with and as a result a lockout was inaugurated to-day."

President Perham, of the Railway Telegraphers' union, said yesterday: "But one man has failed us here. Elsewhere they have gone out uniformly. The superintendents have not called on operators or agents in the Twin Cities or any of the large stations. I want to make it clear that this is not a strike, but a lockout."

A general strike of the telegraphers on the lines of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways was ordered last night by President Perham, of the Order of Railway Telegraphers. Perham is confident that 95 per cent. of the operators will go out.

A CLASH BETWEEN STATES.

Mississippi and Louisiana Are Likely to Fight Over Quarantine Regulations.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 2.—Advices from Baton Rouge, the capital of Louisiana, state that a clash between the Mississippi and Louisiana authorities over the quarantine situation is imminent. It is said that Mississippi soldiers, employed as quarantine guards, have invaded Louisiana soil with arms. Dr. Souchon, president of the Louisiana board of health, has asked Gov. Blanchard to wire the proper authorities in Washington to intervene at once.

The dignity of Louisiana has been offended by an armed invasion from Mississippi, and Gov. Blanchard communicated yesterday with the captain of the naval brigade, which has a fully equipped gunboat, with the view of having it sent to the borders to protect Louisiana citizens from further indignities.

The schooner Grace, of Gulfport, Miss., and another vessel have been lying five miles inside of the Louisiana line most of the time for the past week and at times even entering the Rigolets, the outlet from Lake Ponchartrain into Lake Borgne, and during that time have taken 18 Louisiana boats, some of them schooners and others luggers, and turned them over to the revenue cutter Winona, and towed them to Ship Island, where the crews were immured. This brings the federal government into the muddle.

A RUSH OF HOMESEEKERS.

Registration of Applicants for Land in the Uintah Indian Reservation Begins.

Salt Lake, Utah, Aug. 2.—Registration of applicants for land on the Uintah reservation was begun Tuesday at Provo, Price, and Vernal, Utah. At Provo registrations were made at the Parker school house and the Proctor academy. Exactly 441 applicants were in line at each place. At Price there were 17 registrations in the first 15 minutes.

Denver, Col., Aug. 2.—Advices from Grand Junction, Col., and Vernal, Price and Provo, Utah, indicate that the work of registering applicants for homesteads in the Uintah reservation is proceeding in an orderly manner. The registration opened at 9 o'clock Tuesday and will continue for 12 days. Thousands of people are in line at the registration places, although early registration affords no advantage to the applicants, as the land will be distributed by a drawing which will begin on August 17.

INDICTED A MILLIONAIRE.

Grand Jury at Milwaukee Accuses a Wealthy Citizen of the Larceny of $14,000.

Milwaukee, Aug. 5.—Charles F. Pfister, one of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens of Milwaukee, was indicted by a grand jury Friday, charged with stealing $14,000 belonging to the Wisconsin Rendering Co., of Milwaukee. Indictments were also returned against four other men, as follows:

John F. Dittmar, formerly supervisor, bribery.

George F. Reichert, supervisor, bribery.

Barney A. Eaton, state senator, bribery.

Frank F. Schultz, formerly newspaper reporter, perjury.

The indictment against Pfister alleges that on March 30, 1901, the accused was bailee of a sum of money said to be $14,000, placed in his hands for the Wisconsin Rendering Co. to obtain for the company a large contract from the city of Milwaukee for the disposing of garbage. It is charged that the money was not used for the purpose intended and that Pfister fraudulently converted the money to his own use.

Pfister is a director of a leading bank, owns a large interest in a big tannery, is proprietor of a large hotel and owns one of the leading newspapers of Milwaukee.

Mr. Pfister last night issued the following statement:

"The charge is absolutely false and has no foundation whatever. About eight years ago F. C. Gross, who was president of the Wisconsin Rendering Co., placed money in my hands and I disbursed it according to his directions.

"More than two years since the balance was paid over on Mr. Gross' orders. No dissatisfaction was ever expressed to me by anyone, and this indictment is the first intimation I ever received from any person that anything remained unsettled, or that any claim was supposed to exist against me."

Mr. Pfister, who has been in ill health for several days, sent a certified check for $10,000 to the clerk of the court for his appearance when needed.

The indictments against Reichert and Dittmar allege bribery in connection with "county deals."

Senator Eaton is charged with accepting a bribe in connection with a stationary engineer's bill in the legislature.

Last night's indictments make a total of 133 by the present grand jury. The jury has taken a recess until August 22.

A $90,000,000 ESTATE.

American Heirs of Valentine Faber Will Try to Obtain a Huge Fortune in Germany.

Columbus, O., Aug. 5.—John J. Stoddart, a local attorney, has gone to Germany to represent the heirs of Valentine Faber in an attempt to recover an estate valued at $90,000,000.

Valentine Faber was a brother of Baron Von Faber, first head of the Faber Pencil Co., who died in Germany in 1859, leaving an estate valued at $300,000,000. According to the provisions of his will, this estate was bequeathed to his three brothers, two of whom lived in Bavaria, and another, Valentine, in America. The latter died without learning of the legacy and after several years his share of the estate was claimed by his surviving brothers.

Stoddart represents the Faber Legacy Association of America. Included in the papers taken with him to Germany are Valentine Faber's passport, letters written to him in America by his brothers, family records and other important documents.

Luther Carl von Faber, of Baden Baden, who recently visited America, claims that there is no dispute about Valentine Faber's relationship to the deceased baron, but the trouble will be in recovering the property after the lapse of so many years.

The American heirs are wealthy and well fortified to make a fight.

BUSINESS BULLETIN.

Trade Expands and the Percentage of Idle Machinery Steadily Diminishes.

New York, Aug. 5.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Business continues to expand in a wholesome manner that promises well for the future. Reports from the leading branches of manufacture are unanimous in telling of an increasing volume of orders, and the percentage of idle machinery steadily diminishes. Textile plants make the best returns, closely followed by footwear factories, and some divisions of the steel industry are engaged so far ahead that capacity is extended. Better prospects for the crops remove the only handicap that impeded the revival of trade.

The month of July made a most encouraging exhibit in so far as statistics are available, liabilities of failures being smaller than in any month since April, 1901, and railway earnings surpassed last year's by 9.1 per cent.

Failures this week in the United States are 232, against 230 the corresponding week last year, and in Canada 26, against 18 last year.

NOW IS THE TIME TO PAINT.

Important Memorandum.—The paint is the most important factor in painting. A job complete, done by a good painter, with the best quality of paint, costing say $60.00 ($40.00 labor, $20.00 paint), will last five years. The same paint applied by a dauber ($20.00 labor, $20.00 paint), will last only two years. Thus the "per-year-cost" of the good painter's job is $12.00—the [illegible] painter's, $20.00.

Above all, USE GOOD PAINT!

The oil! linseed oil! Just pure linseed is the "life"—the one great requisite of good paint for which there is no substitute—and the sure way to get the pure, fresh linseed oil is to buy the oil and separately. For every gallon of Kinloch Paint buy one gallon of linseed oil. This makes two gallons of paint, ready for use. You then know that the paint you're putting on your house is alive—"the genuine oil is in it," and paint is not pain unless it contains 50% of really pure oil. We will further explain the virtues of Kinloch Paint if you will call and see us.

Kinloch HOUSE PAINT

Witte is missing some of the preliminary feeds at Portsmouth, but probably he will have plenty to digest when he chews over the Japanese peace terms.

Mr. Sato says that he has never given out any outline of the Japanese peace conditions. Nobody thought that he was going to and there are very few who would believe them if they thought he had.

***

A whole lot of minor grafters in Washington can point with pride to their record, inasmuch as they have not stolen quite so freely as some of their associates.

***

Senator Depew says he is about to return from Europe. There are many citizens of the United States who if they were safely in Europe would make every effort to stay there.

***

Ex-Statistician Hyde is not living up to his name since he has telegraphed home his address in Liverpool.

***

Who is going to believe the State Department is really in favor of the Open Door when it talks of extending the scope of its extradition treaties?

***

The Equitable report says that the company shows a steady growth. The same claim might be made for any grave yard.

***

They seem to have thought in New York that "Fads and Fancies" well worth buying. Perhaps they know the reporters were onto some of the doings of the smart set that were better worth suppressing.

***

A glance at the Congressional Record shows that a great many of the members who are making most fuss over the Treasury deficit were the very ones who helped create it by voting "aye" on the appropriation bills.

***

If they are going to reimpose those war taxes on us, we might as well have the fun of getting out and licking another third class power.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Aug. 5th, 1905.

Editor Press:—

Considerable talk has been made over the alleged refusal of President Roosevelt to participate in the coming reciprocity congress. This is based almost entirely on either misapprehension or a distortion of facts. The President's views on reciprocity are well known and the same views were held by McKinley and before him by Blaine. The President's earnest interest in the matter was shown by the reciprocity treaties which he negotiated and sent to Congress and which were killed by the Senate. Capital is now being made out of the statement that the whole of the administration is against the reciprocity congress and that its indifference has become a matter of "active hostility." This is not true. The President at Oyster Bay has had his hands full recently with both the peace envoys and the troubles in the Agricultural department. But he has made time to receive the president of congress and whatever the administration can properly do toward futhering the work it may be depended on to do. This is a very delicate time however to go into reciprocity matters at all. The congress claims to be on a strictly non partican basis, but it is hardly likely that the discussion will end without politics being largely injected into it. Neither the President nor the cabinet want to get mixed up in a political matter of that sort just now, but it is quite certain that if the congress succeeds in doing anything pratical it will have the warm support of the executive during the coming session of Congress. Matters abroad are rapidly shaping themselves so that there will have to be some action on expiting treaties and on the threatened discriminating duties against the United States and if action settling the matter of an equitable basis is not taken during coming winter, it will be the fault of Congress and not for lack of interest on the part of he executive.

The movement to secure foreign laborers for Panama has come to a temporary halt. It will be remembered that it was originally decided to advertise for 2,000 laborers each from Italy, China and Japan. None of these governments came out with open objection to the project but quietly threw a number of obstacles in the way and finally Japan was stated to have declared that she would hinder in every way the participation of her subjects in such an enterprise because of the bad sanitary conditions prevailing on the isthmus. It did seem a little hard at the time for a nation that only a few years back was only just beginning to read. so to speak, to be lecturing the American government on the subject of modern hygiene. But it will also be recalled that the objection of the Japanese government was based on a report that was made before the American administration had fairly taken hold of the matter. It is stated at the Canal Commission that the objection of the Japanese government is groundless. Its sanitary experts were sent to the isthmus months ago and while their report was decidely adverse, the conditions there have materially changed and there is now nothing for the Japanese to fear. However, it is quite possible that the plan of engaging oriental laborers will be dropped altogether and the canal may after all be dug by native labor reinforced by workers from the adjacent Islands who are acquainted with the climate and will rather improve their condition than otherwise by going into the canal zone.

Pleasantly Effective.

Never in the way, no trouble to carry, easy to take, pleasant and never failing in results are DeWitt's LittleEarly Risers. SUN LIFE'S DEPOSIT.

$500,000 in Bonds Placed With the Fidelity Trust Company of Newark.

The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada has executed a trust deed appointing the Fidelity Trust Company of Newark, N. J., as one of its trustees and depositories in the United States, and has made a preliminary deposit, amounting to $500,000, in first class interest bearing bonds. for the protection and security of its policy-holders in this country.

With an equal amount deposited with the Insurance Department of the State of Michigan, the company now has in the hands of trustees in this country $1,000,000 and this amount, The Insurance Press understands, is to be immediately increased by a further deposit of securities, so that the company's total liabilities in the United States, as computed by the Insurance Commissioners of the different States in which it is doing business, shall always be fully covered by the securities held in trust.

When the officers of this progressive old line company, after due deliberation, voluntarily decided to execute such a liberal trust as the one referred to, it certainly must convince not only the policyholders but also the insuring public at large, that the Sun does not desire nor intend to rest satisfied with having complied with all the usual legal requirements asked of foreign incorporated life companies in this country, but has deliberately planked down first-class secnrities to better protect its American policy-holders.

Some people have the idea that because a company is incorporated outside of this country that this fact neccessarily means the withdrawal of the premium income collected here. But that is often a great mistake, as can readily be seen by a glance at the investment account of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada. At the present time it is not only investing its total net premium income in United States securities but is also drawing funds from many distant branches for investment here, and held on December 31, 1904, in American bonds, debentures, etc., no less than $7,590,391.

In selecting the Fidelity Trust Company as one of its United States trustees, the Sun Life has shown that it is its purpose and intention to employ only institutions whose financial strength entitles them to a formost place in the rank of the trust companies of this country.

A summary of the principal conditions of this important trusteeship document will interest the insuring public. They are as follows:

(1) The creating of greater confidence and security to all the policyholders of the Sun Life residing within the United States.

(2) The right is granted the trustee to sell or dispose of said securities, under certain conditions, is case a decree or claim should be filed against the company.

(3) The trustee may demand a change of securities, in the event of depreciation in value, or default in interest, if they so deem it necessary.

(4) Under certain conditions, the company may name new trustees in the United States, but it is expressly provided that the deposit shall always be maintained and held in this country as long as any liability exists.

These particulars give ample and sufficient evidence of the honesty and determination of the directors of the Sun Life to provide and to maintain absolute security for those who entrust their funds to them. Therefore, it is little wonder that this progressive international old line company is making such steady and substantial gains in all departments, both here and in other countries.

A Touching Story.

Is the saving from death of the baby girl of Geo. A. Eyler, Cumberland, Md. He writes: "At the age of 11 months, our little girl was in declining health, with serious Throat Trouble, and two physicians gave he up. We were almost in despair, when we resolved to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. The first bottle gave relief; after taking four bottles she was cured, and is now in perfect health." Never fails to relieve and cure a cough or cold. At L. Taggart's drug store; 50c and $1.00 guaranteed. Trial bottles free.

A woman doesn't stop to think that a mouse might also be afraid of her.

Is It Right.

Is it right that a property-owner should lose $4.20 to let a dealer make 50 cents? A dealer makes more on fourteen gallons of ready for use paint, at $1.50 per gallon, than our agent does on eight gallons of L. & M. paint and six gallons of linseed oil, which make fourteen gallons of the best paint in the world, at $1.20 per gallon; the property-owner loses just $4.20. Is it right?

It only requires 4 gallons of L. & M., and 3 gallons linseed oil to paint a moderate sized house.

Ten Thousand Churches painted with Longman & Martinez L. & M., Paint.

Liberal quantity given to churches when bought from Harry S. Lloyd.

Public is Aroused.

The public is aroused to a knowledge of the curative merits of that great medicinal tonic, Electric Bitters, for sick stomach, liver and kidneys. Mary H. Walters, of 546 St Clair Ave., Columbus, O., writes: For several months, I was given up to die. I had fever and ague, my nerves were wrecked; I could not sleep, and my stomach was so weak, from useless doctors' drugs, that I could not eat. Soon after beginning to take Electric Bitters, I obtained relief, and in a short time I was entirely cured." Guaranteed at L. Taggart's drug store; price 50c.

From the Sunny South.

Away down in West Virginia,
Far, far away,
There is a place where they keep boarders
Both night and day,
Right on the banks of Green Briar River,
Near Travelers Repose,
Lives J. E. Rhoades with his wife and children
That's the way the story goes.

Now listen while I tell you something,
What do you think?
One day there came along a fellow
And they said it was Ned Brink.
Then he and the fair young Edyth
Went to Marlington
And when they came back, two days later,
They two had made one.

While there they had been married,
The preacher was an M— E—
Then of course they were as happy
As ever they could be.
The bride was gowned in a blue silk
Satin and lace of white,
And as they start upon life's journey
All the world seems very bright.

Then Mr. Fleck did take an engine
And a special car
With Mr. James who is a fireman
Just longing for a cigar,
Then they brought this happy couple
To their home again,
Where many loving friends did meet them
And the rice began to rain.

Then, at the home of the bride's parents
Wedding feast was served
But to tell the truth, not much was eaten
Every one seemed so unnerved,
Only a few friends were invited
Shall I tell their names?
Mr. and Mrs. James Cassidy
Mr. and Mrs. Charles James.

And Misters Peabody and Norris
And a Mr. Lowe,
Indeed there were several others
Whose names I do not know.
There were many beautiful presents
Given this happy pair,
May their life be long and happy
And free from every care.

One thing I most forgot to mention,
T'was the 29 of July,
Mr. Brink and Miss Rhoades were married
Rev. Pope the knot did tie,
Let us send congratulations,
To Mr. and Mrs. Brink,
The good wishes of Cameron county
Will follow them I think.

BLUE BIRD.

The Only Way.

There is no way to maintain the health and strength of mind and body except by nourishment. There is no way to nourish except through the stomach. The stomach must be kept healthy, pure and sweet or the strength will be let down and disease will set up. No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, sour risings, rifting, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles that are cureable are quickly cured by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. Kodol digests what you eat and strengthens the whole digestive apparatus. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

Fiendish Suffering.

Is often caused by sores, ulcers and cancers, that eat away your skin. Wm. Bedell, of Flat Rock, Mich., says: "I have used Bucklen's Arnica Salve, for Ulcers, Sores and Cancers. It is the best healing dressing I ever found." Soothes and heals cuts, burns and scalds. 25c at L. Taggart's drug store; guaranteed.

Who use molasses demand the best syrup obtainable. Treacle is not molasses although there's much treacle sailing under false colors. The difference between treacle and molasses lies in the fact that treacle comes from sugar in the process of making, while molasses is obtained in the process of refining. Nature Helps Mi-o-na Cure Stomach Troubles in Short Order.

The summer months are the best in the whole year for the treatment and cure of stomach troubles. The out-door life, with natural exercise, the fruit and berries which are so freely eaten, all help to restore healthy action to the digestive organs.

Now when Nature will aid Mi-o-na in curing indigestion and giving strength to the stomach and whole digestive system, is the best time to use this remarkable remedy.

Taken before each meal, Mi-o-na will soothe and heal the inflamed and irritated lining of the stomach and solar-plexus, and strengthen the nerves of the digestive tract. Used at any time of the year, it cures all diseases of the stomach, excepting cancer, but in the summer months it gives health and strength twice as quickly.

If you suffer with headache, indigestion, flatulency, specks before the eyes, fermentation, heart burn, dizziness, or have a variable appetite, and a general feeling of despondency or weakness, it shows clearly that the stomach is not digesting the food as it should. Instead of the food being assimiliated and making rich, red blood and good solid, flesh and muscles, it is turned in the stomach into a sour, slimy, fermenting mass that causes gases, distress after eating, and poisonous germs that fill the whole body with poor health.

Just one little tablet out of a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na for a few days, and all this will be changed for the better, and health restored. Ask L. Taggart to show you the Mi-o-na guarantee.

A CONFESSION.

Dear little boy, with wondering eyes
That for the light of knowledge yearn,
Who have such faith that I am wise
And know the things that you would learn.
Though oft I shake my head and smile
To hear your childish questions flow,
I must not meet your faith with guile;
I cannot tell, I do not know.

Dear little boy, with eager heart,
Forever on the quest of truth,
Your riddles oft are past my art
To answer to your tender youth.
But some day you will understand
The things that now I cannot say,
When life shall take you by the hand
And lead you on its wondrous way.

Dear little boy, with hand in mine,
Together through the world we fare,
Where much that I would fain divine
I have not yet the strength to bear.
Like you with riddling words I ask,
Like you I hold another hand,
And haply when I do my task,
I, too, shall understand.
—P. McArthur, in Youth's Companion.

A ROSE OF NORMANDY

By WILLIAM R. A. WILSON

"A contemptible dog that," he said, looking steadily at him, "who would subject a lady to such indignity and alarm; worthy only to be spat upon."

The topic of conversation changed, and Tonti a prey to a mixture of emotions, wishing to be alone, sauntered slowly away from the circle where he had been. A moment later a hand was laid upon his shoulder and a voice deep with passion exclaimed:

"You may have an opportunity to spit upon the contemptible cur you mention, sir capitaine, or be appropriately spitted by my sword;" and at the same instant a gauntlet was thrown at his feet.

Tonti looked up, and seeing it was the Comte de Miron who spoke, carefully brushed away at the spot on his shoulder where his fingers had rested and replied contemptuously:

"You know the recent edict of the king against duelling; you are safe in your offer."

The Comte flushed. "Drive in a coach to-morrow at noon along the Chemin de Clamar; I shall meet you coming from the other direction. Our drivers can be instructed to collide opposite Mont Parnasse; we can leap forth, and with the collision as a pretext we can fight as though it were a sudden matter. No seconds need be present, so that none may know."

"I accept," exclaimed Tonti, picking up the glove.

"With swords?" asked the Comte.

"With swords."

"A l'outrance?"

"To the very death."

CHAPTER IX.

DESCRIBES A ROADSIDE MEETING, A WARNING, AND A FLIGHT.

When Tonti had breakfasted the next morning he explained to Pompon the nature of his drive, and ordered him to have a coach waiting in front of the Louvre at 11 o'clock. He then sat down and wrote a letter to La Salle, explaining everything, leaving to him whatever share of the buried treasure Pompon was willing to give him, and wishing him well in his explorations and expressing sincere regret that a question of honor had come up for settlement just as they were about to start. He sealed and addressed it, with instructions to Pompon to deliver same in case of his death. He then divested himself of a portion of his clothing and practiced for a full hour making passes, feints, and guards, so that his joints and muscles would not be stiff when the time of need arrived.

Pompon, who had been sent to order a coach, not having returned, and it now being a few minutes before 11, he left a note of farewell for him on the table, and, girding on his sword, placed the handkerchief with the letter "R" upon it within his bosom and left the house. Luckily he had brought his cloak with him, for he found upon reaching the street that a fine rain was falling. At the Louvre he found a coach waiting, and he was soon rolling across the nearest bridge, through the Porte Dauphin, along the Rue du Four and into the Rue de Chasse Midy, then past the establishment of Les Religieuses du St. Esprit to the Chemin de Clamor. By this time the city was left behind, and they drove through a sparsely built suburban region, back of the Convent des Chartreuses. The open fields in this quarter were favorite duelling grounds, especially those about a slight elevation of ground called Mont Parnasse, which they now approached.

Knowing that the carriage containing the Comte de Miron would soon meet his, and that the collision which was to be the pretext of the duel was imminent, he withdrew the handkerchief from its hiding-place and kissed it gently before returning it. Then having loosened his sword in its sheath, he awaited the end impatiently. Presently he heard the warning shouts of his driver, mingled with oaths and imprecations from another tongue. A few seconds later came a shock that almost threw him from his seat. The coach stopped and, alighting, he found the vehicle with which they had collided on its side in the ditch, with the Comte de Miron climbing through its open door, face spattered with mud and his temper not improved by the knowledge of the appearance he knew he must present.

Together they walked across the field some 50 paces' distance from their carriages, Tonti's driver accompanying them to render any assistance needed in removing their outer garments, while the other remained with the horses. The preliminaries being arranged, the two men faced each other.

"En garde!" cried the Comte de Miron between his teeth.

"En garde!" came from Tonti in calm and measured tones.

The swords touched, crossed, and the fight was on. Both learned in a few moments that neither had a weak opponent before him. Each tried the other with all the commoner thrusts only to find him ready with a parry. At last Tonti, in order to tire his antagonist and thus make it easier when he next attacked him, maintained the defensive only. His thoughts wandered away from the scene before him and he seemed to stand in the same room he had visited yesterday, gazing upon the face that he realized now that he loved. Only, instead of her eyes following the printed pages of a book, they looked into his own with a friendly gaze. But as he looked they suddenly changed and a gleam of terror and horror filled them, as though they saw a terrible sight, and her hand was raised as though in warning.

At this instant the Comte de Miron pretended to slip, and Tonti involuntarily raised his sword-point to enable him to recover his footing. The look of terror in the face of the one he loved brought him suddenly back to a full realization of his surroundings. But it was too late. The comte, counting upon the honor and generosity of his foe when he perceived his misstep, and seeing the point of Tonti's sword raised, made a sudden lunge, a twist and upward movement, and Tonti's sword was hurled from his hand and lighted point downward in the earth just outside his reach. Then Tonti realized his danger, for his foe, with unrepressed hatred gleaming in his eye, made for him as he stood unarmed and defenseless before him. It was but a second's duration, but Tonti's thought flew back to the street where they had met and he heard again the voice he loved cautioning him against the treachery of the man before him. He saw the loved eyes quiver, yet gaze at him admiringly as he met his death bravely and without flinching. Fully realizing the impossibility of escaping assassination, he resolved not to shrink before his treacherous foe, so with a look of contempt in his eye and the words "For you, my Rose," in his heart he awaited the impact of the deadly weapon.

Just as the end of his enemy's sword was about to enter his breast, the clicking of other steel was heard and the point was struck up harmlessly in the air. Tonti's driver, who had stood very near during the combat, seeing his plight, had suddenly dropped the cloaks he was holding, and, drawing a sword from the depths of the great-coat in which he was muffled, had parried the blow. "Wretch!" he said, contemptuously, to the Comte de Miron. Tonti with a spring recovered his sword and returned to the attack. Before, he had had but little heart in the battle, meaning only to inflict some trifling wound, knowing that were he involved in any mortal combat the chances would be that Colbert would seize that as a pretext for detaining him, despite the king's protection, and La Salle would have to sail without him. But now, blinded by the fury aroused by the vile trick of his opponent, he attacked him with all his skill and strength.

"Before I count ten, M. le Compte," he said, slowly, "you shall die;" and beginning to count each stroke, he pressed his antagonist hard, reserving a half-forgotten trick of the sword, learned in Italy, for the final. The Comte de Miron responded with equal fury of attack and defense, but as he heard Tonti count so confidently and saw the smile of triumph on his face he weakened, and the sacrilegious charm he wore seemed to burn a bright red spot in his chest as a sign to Tonti where to strike.

"One!"

A spark flew between the blades.

"Two!"

The sword play became more furious.

"Three!"

The combatants shifted their positions continuously.

"Four!"

The breathing of the Comte de Miron grew shorter and more rapid.

"Five!"

His thrusts became wilder and his face flushed, in strong contrast with the coolness and precision of his opponent.

"Six!"

A terrible oath escaped his lips as Tonti calmly turned aside a quick stroke on which he had counted much.

"Seven!"

His attack weakened, and he glanced out of the corner of his eye to see if Tonti's driver were near enough for him to suddenly seize and pull the man in front of him to receive the fatal blow in his body, knowing that before Tonti could withdraw his sword he would be at the comte's mercy.

"Eight!"

The base plan was impossible of execution, as the driver now stood far to one side. He then thought of escape by flight, gaining one of the horses and fleeing to the city. There were no seconds present to witness this cowardly action and he could easily bribe the two drivers to discredit any version Tonti might give of the affair. This, too, he perceived was futile, as Tonti stood between him and the road where the horses were standing.

"Nine!"

All hope was now gone and a nameless terror seized him. That cursed charm burned still brighter over his heart. He vaguely thought of throwing away his sword and falling on his knees to implore mercy from his foe. Had this plan occurred to him when he was still himself, calm and reasonable, he might have done so, but now, with his brain a-whirl and the shaking fear in possession of him, he judged Tonti by his own standards of honor and believed that he would in turn assassinate him in cold blood even as he had attempted to do himself but a short time before. His last hope was gone. Perhaps the charm would save him yet.

"Ten!"

A cry of fear broke from him and with it came a last appeal to satan for assistance.

At the word Tonti executed the stroke he had planned, his foe's sword was turned, and his own sword-point running along inside his guard entered his breast above the heart, and he sank to the ground with a groan, while a red stream gushed from his mouth and chest.

"Dead dogs do not bite; still, this is bad work, mon ami; we must leave quickly," said a familiar voice; and Tonti, looking into the muffled face of his driver, recognized Pompon. Before they could say anything further the driver of the other carriage ran up and presented a note to Tonti. It was written in a feminine hand and ran as follows:

The death of the Compte de Miron will be promptly avenged. You must flee at once without returning to the city. Obey whatever the bearer of this note suggests.

It was unsigned. Tonti was suspicious, so, handing the note to Pompon, he questioned the driver, endeavoring to elicit from him some information as to the identity of the writer, but it was of no avail.

"I was to tell you that behind yonder clump of trees you would find two horses. Take them and set out for Etampes. Take this ring, and when asked by any one to show it, produce it and you will be helped to La Rochelle and kept in hiding until your ship sails. Surrender it when you reach the end of your road to whomsoever asks for it. Further than that I cannot speak, but I pray you make haste."

Pompon approached during this speech.

"His advice is good. If it is treachery we can but be caught. If we return to the city we shall surely not escape. I prefer the chances of treachery in the open country to a certainty of the Bastille in Paris. It is better to make conditions in the brush than in prison. Thinking some such emergency might arise I brought some of your clothes, our supply of money, and a few things for myself. They are under the seat of my carriage. I shall get them."

Tonti finally yielded, and the two leaving the dying man in care of the agent of their unknown friend, they proceeded in the direction pointed out. Behind the trees stood two magnificent English horses, all ready for the road, with provender for beast, and food and drink for the men attached to the saddle, while on one was tied a little bag of money to provide against emergencies.

"We shall return this at the first relay," said Tonti, as they swung into the road at a good gallop. "Ma foi! I do not object to using a stranger's horses to make my escape, but I will not touch his gold."

"Judging by the fodder for the horses, they think that there is urgent need of our not losing time by stopping to feed them. We have ten leagues before us and that means five good hours of saddle work. However, with another man's horses and your own whip one can accomplish a great deal," was Pompon's advice.

As they warmed to their task, the horses showed their splendid breeding and staying powers. On they went all the afternoon through the heavy rain that had closed down upon them. Towards dark the signs of approach to a town, much larger than the villages they had passed through, warned them of their first halting-place.

Just before crossing a small bridge two men sprang out and seized both horses by the bridles; at the same time each presented a loaded pistol at their heads.

"We want no money, gentlemen," came a gruff voice from one of them, "we need jewelry. Have you any rings about you?"

Tonti looked at Pompon, who nodded. He then handed the ring which the unknown had provided them with to the speaker, who took it, and, after disappearing to some nook where he had the means of making a light to examine it, returned in a few moments.

"They are the ones," said he to his companion, as he returned the ring to Tonti. At this the bridles were released and the men removed their hats. "You must be in Orleans by morning," the leader said, respectfully. "Wait here and refresh yourselves with the food and wine you have with you. We shall return shortly, bringing fresh horses."

In due time they were on their way again on new mounts, feeling heartened by the wine and food consumed. On through the drizzling night they went, Pompon showing a strange familiarity with the road whenever any question of that character arose.

Thus they advanced, showing the talismanic circlet whenever required and receiving in return fresh horses, a hiding-place to sleep, and different disguises, so that their progress could not be traced. On they fared through Blois, Tours and Chinon, Loudon and Parthenay, and over the mountains to Fontenay. Here their mysterious ring procured them a guide, who conducted them by a roundabout way, avoiding the city of La Rocheile itself, to the coast, and along the water's edge to a cave worn by the waves out of the rock, where they could overlook the harbor and see the ship "Saint Honore" that was to bear them to new lands riding at anchor not half a league away. They watched it day by day, as boat-loads of provisions, cannon, soldiers, and passengers were taken out and placed on board. Their faithful guide remained with them, going out at night for food and for information relative to the progress of the vessel's lading. Thus passed several weeks, and they were beginning to weary of their confinement when news came that La Salle had arrived and that the vessel would sail at the turn of the tide the next evening. Their guide also learned that a thorough search of the ship had been made for them by the soldiers, and that a final visit would be made before dark.

At length the day darkened and the night came on. A small fisherman's boat that had been at work all the afternoon near by, drew in towards the shore as night fell, and soon a signal from their ally brought it close to them. Tonti surrendered the ring upon request and sought to repay their guide, but as in all the other cases, he refused the offered money. So helping them into the boat, he waved a good-by from shore, as they fast disappeared in the darkness.

The boatman pulled hard at the oars, and they soon found themselves nearing the ship. A few lights on her decks served to render the confusion existing there visible, but they were not bright enough to illuminate the waters about the vessel, while the noise of departure—her anchor was already raised and her small forward sails set—made a cautious approach unnecessary. At last they found themselves directly under her stern, and the rippling of the water warned them to hasten ere she got fully under weigh. By the advice of the boatman, Pompon, agile as a cat, swung himself up on to a small swinging scaffold that had been used in painting the stern of the vessel, and had been overlooked in the hurry of sailing, with a small leather pouch tied to his body that he had brought with him from Paris. Tonti then handed up his sword, and with a parting boost from the boatman soon found himself crouched alongside Pompon. A fragile, swaying seat it was indeed, but safe, for they would not dare to climb to the deck above until the vessel had cleared the harbor.

Thus did three men sail on the "Saint Honore," parting from the sunny land of France with diverse emotions. In the stern stood La Salle, looking back at the fast-receding lights of La Rochelle, murmuring the words of that plaintive song of Mary Stuart as she sailed from Calais:

"Adieu! oh plaisant pays,
Adieu! oh ma patrie,
La plus cherie, qui a nourrit
Ma belle enfance—adieu!"

Yet tinged as was his mind with regret at leaving civilization and the new love that had arisen in his heart, he still looked forward with eagerness to the great task before him. All was secondary to this. For this he lived; for this he would die.

Shivering in his cramped position on the swinging stage below him, a little man with scarred face and crafty eye shook his fist in triumph at his escape from the land and the woman that had both used him so ill.

Another man beside him, as the tacking of the ship brought the distant lights in view for the last time, stretched towards the shore a hand trembling with a new and sweet emotion, as he murmured: "Adieu! my Rose, until we meet."

[To Be Continued.]

Pride of Profession.

Old Barney Maguigan was as well known on his "sweep stretch" as the bluecoats on the beat. As his work became somewhat burdensome with the increase of years, the residents of the neighborhood urged the employment of an assistant. Barney did not look upon the suggestion with much favor—it savored too strongly of the time when he should be "laid on the shelf,"—but he consented to the trial of a new hand at last, and a stout youth was engaged whose broom made quick work of the leaves and litter. "Yessir," Barney admitted, reluctantly, a few mornings later, when asked by an old friend if he did not find his assistant a good worker, "yessir, there's no use denying he's got the muscle to swing a broom in the open; but man alive! when it comes to the fancy touches round a lamp-post or a sewer mouth, why, he's no good at all!"—Youth's Companion.

Cheering Him Up.

"Ye-es," Mr. Billings said, reluctantly, in reply to his friend's remark that Mrs. Joyce was "an awfully sweet little woman." "So cheerful! Always sunny; always looking on the bright side!" Billing's friend continued, enthusiastically.

"There's such a thing as overdoing that 'bright side' business," said Billings. "The other night I was up there and Joyce—You know how absent-minded he is?—put the lighted end of his cigar in his mouth. He jumped three feet, and was a little noisy for a minute. Right in the midst of it all Mrs. Joyce smiled blandly, and said: "'How fortunate you were, dear, to discover it at once!"—Youth's Companion.

Historic Building.

For nearly 400 years the old "Shipping House," at the end of the Breite Strasse (Broad Street) at Lubeck, has perpetuated the days of the Hansa, when the Baltic town was the first city of Germany and the word Lubeck Shipping association was law. Although originally organized for benevolent and religious purposes, this guild waxed so strong in the course of time that it actually exercised the functions of a court of justice in the latter part of the sixteenth century and the beginning of the seventeenth.—From "Lubeck Shipping House," by Hugo Erichsen, in Four-Track News.

GENERAL WEAKNESS AND FEVER DISAPPEAR TOO.

How a Woman Was Freed from Troubles That Had Made Life Wretched for Many Years.

The immediate causes of headaches vary, but most of them come from poor or poisoned blood. In anæmia the blood is scanty or thin; the nerves are imperfectly nourished and pain is the way in which they express their weakness. In colds the blood absorbs poison from the mucous surfaces, and the poison irritates the nerves and produces pain. In rheumatism, malaria and the grip, the poison in the blood produces like discomfort. In indigestion the gases from the impure matter kept in the system affect the blood in the same way.

The ordinary headache-cures at best give only temporary relief. They deaden the pain but do not drive the poison out of the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on the contrary thoroughly renew the blood and the pain disappears permanently. Women in particular have found these pills an unfailing relief in headaches caused by anæmia.

Miss Stella Blocker recently said: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did me a great deal of good. I had headache nearly all the time. After I had taken three boxes of these pills I became entirely well."

"How long had you suffered?" she was asked.

"For several years. I can't tell the exact date when my illness began for it came on by slow degrees. I had been going down hill for many years."

"Did you have any other ailments?"

"I was very weak and sometimes I had fever. My liver and kidneys were affected as well as my head."

"How did you come to take the remedy that cured you?"

"I saw in a southern newspaper a statement of some person who was cured of a like trouble by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My physician hadn't done me any good, so I bought a box of these pills. After I had taken one box I felt so much better that I kept on until I became entirely well."

Miss Blocker's home is at Leander, Louisiana. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists. Besides headache they cure neuralgia, sciatica, nervous prostration, partial paralysis and rheumatism.

Coffee Acts the Jonah and Will Come Up.

A clergyman who pursues his noble calling in a country parish in Iowa, tells of his coffee experience:

"My wife and I used coffee regularly for breakfast, frequently for dinner, and occasionally for supper—always the very best quality—package coffee never could find a place on our table.

"In the spring of 1896 my wife was taken with violent vomiting which we had great difficulty in stopping.

"It seemed to come from coffee drinking, but we could not decide.

"In the following July, however, she was attacked a second time by the vomiting. I was away from home filling an appointment at the time, and on my return I found her very low; she had literally vomited herself almost to death, and it took some days to quiet the trouble and restore her stomach.

"I had also experienced the same trouble, but not so violently, and had relieved it, each time, by a resort to medicine.

"But my wife's second attack satisfied me that the use of coffee was at the bottom of our troubles, and so we stopped it forthwith and took on Postum Food Coffee. The old symptoms of disease disappeared, and during the 9 years that we have been using Postum instead of coffee we have never had a recurrence of the vomiting. We never weary of Postum, to which we know we owe our good health. This is a simple statement of facts." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

UNIQUE LAMB TROUGH.

Swinging Device Recommended by a Correspondent of the Breeder's Gazette.

There are a good many ways of placing grain before lambs in order to foster their growth, but the accompanying illustration will give a new idea to many readers. This device is skillfully designed to play upon the inquisitive nature of the lamb. He notices the swinging movement and in investigating is lead to taste the ground feed placed there for him. The man who designed the plan says that it works with marked success. In addition to this feature there is the minimum danger of the grain becoming fouled in any way. In a late issue of the Breeders' Gazette a correspondent gives the following directions for construction:

Take two pieces of lumber, say two by four's, each six feet long, allowing two feet to go into the ground; on top of these two timbers is placed a four by four, as seen in the sketch. Suspend two wires from timber, B, fasten to trough as shown, a a. Let the trough hang 18 inches from the ground."

BEDDING FOR HORSES.

Needed in the Summer Time Just as Much as During the Winter Months.

Some horse owners seem to think that because it is summer and no heat is needed that a horse can be comfortable without bedding. Such men ought to try sleeping on the bare springs of their beds for a while, says the Midland Farmer. Is is no waste of material to make the bed of the horse as comfortable during the summer as in the winter; it is not necessary to be so liberal with the straw as on a cold night, but there should be enough so that the bed is comparatively soft.

If one wishes to economize try the plan of buying a load of shavings (the short ones), from a planing mill and use these in the stall several inches deep, then cover them with the long straw or other material used. It requires less straw and the shavings will absorb much of the liquid excrement. By using them liberally a top layer may be removed and the rest will do for a night or two. Do not, however, use these shavings too freely in the manure pile. Some will not injure the manure, but will act as an absorbent. If one has too many shavings to put in the manure pile, use the cleanest of them in the hog pen or in the corner of the hog yard where the animals lie during the day; in this way they will be converted in the hog droppings to good fertilizer and without injury to the hog manure.

THE ORPHAN COLT.

Suggestions as to the Care of the Foal When the Brood-Mare Dies.

If one is unfortunate enough to lose a brood mare at foaling time, and he has an orphan colt on his hands, the question is how to raise it. A couple of suggestions may be in order. First, the milk of the mare is much sweeter than that of the cow, nature providing for the young thing the kind of food best adapted to its development, says Midland Farmer. Cow's milk, therefore, when fed to the orphan colt, should have a tablespoonful of white, granulated sugar added to each quart. As a matter of course the sugar should be dissolved in hot water before it is added to the milk, but do not use more water than necessary. Every farmer knows that the colt takes a little milk at a time and takes it often. If, therefore, the farmer is compelled to raise an orphan colt, he should adopt nature's method and feed it about as often as it naturally feeds itself when running with the dam.

One of the most convenient ways is simply to take an old teapot and put a kid glove on the spout, puncturing the glove full of holes. After the first few days the time between drinks may be lengthened just as it is when the colt raised by the dam is left in the stable after she has gone to work in the field. It goes without saying that all milk fed to young things should be given at about the same temperature as that of the dam, say at about 100 degrees.

Dipping Sheep.

Dipping sheep as a remedy for ticks is the subject of a bulletin just issued by the Minnesota experiment station. Lambs suffer most from the ticks just after the older sheep have been sheared, as they then leave the sheep and take refuge on the lamb. It is roughly estimated that a tick will take from a lamb four drops of blood per day, or possibly one-fifteenth of a fluid ounce. As many as 100 ticks can be found sometimes upon one lamb. If only half that number be taken the result would be 200 drops of blood being sucked from the lambs daily.

WHAT SHE WOULD TAKE.

Something That Would Enable Her to Escape Those Hashery Jokes.

"Gimme a little cold polar bear," said the man in the basement restaurant to the waitress who, having brought him a glass of water, had stopped to get his order, relates the Chicago Tribune.

"Polar bear's all out," she replied, with a far-away gaze that went past his head without seeing him.

"Got any iced watermelon?"

"Yeh. Want some?"

"No, not if you've got it. How about that pickled tongue?"

"'S all right. D'u want that?"

"Not any for mine. I'm married. Well, I don't see anything here on this bill that's cold enough for a hot day in July, except hot pancakes and coffee. Hurry 'em along, will you? They are bound to be cold by the time I get 'em."

The waitress swept away, still without seeing the customer. He called her back.

"Here," said the customer, "that was just a joke. I want a boiled dinner. What'll you take to laugh the next time I get funny?"

"Chloroform," said the waitress, as she started for the kitchen.

Voice from Arkansas.

Cleveland, Ark., July 31st. (Special).—Nearly every newspaper tells of some wonderful cure of some form of Kidney Disease by the Great American Remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills, and this part of Arkansas is not without its share of evidence that no case is too deeply rooted for Dodd's Kidney Pills to cure.

Mr. A. E. Carlile, well known and highly respected here, tells of his cure after nearly a quarter of a century's suffering. Mr. Carlile says:

"I want to let the public know what I think of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I think they are the best remedy for sick kidneys ever made.

"I had Kidney Trouble for 23 years and never found anything that did me so much good as Dodd's Kidney Pills. I recommend them to all sufferers."

There is no uncertain sound about Mr. Carlile's statement. He knows that Dodd's Kidney Pills rescued him from a life of suffering and he wants the public to know it. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure all Kidney ills from Backache to Bright's Disease.

Painful Eruptions from Knees to Feet Seemed Incurable Until He Used Cuticura.

Another of those remarkable cures by Cuticura, after doctors and all else had failed, is testified to by Mr. M. C. Moss, of Gainesville, Texas, in the following letter: "For over thirty years I suffered from painful ulcers and an eruption from my knees to feet, and could find neither doctors nor medicine to help me, until I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, which cured me in six months. They helped me the very first time I used them, and I am glad to write this so that others suffering as I did may be saved from misery."

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Increasing Among Women, But Sufferers Need Not Despair

THE BEST ADVICE IS FREE

Of all the diseases known, with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal, and statistics show that this disease is on the increase among women.

Unless early and correct treatment is applied the patient seldom survives when once the disease is fastened upon her. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most efficient treatment for kidney troubles of women, and is the only medicine especially prepared for this purpose.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, frequent, painful or scalding urination, swelling of limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys or notices a brick-dust sediment in the urine, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it may be the means of saving her life.

For proof, read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Sawyer.

"I cannot express the terrible suffering I had to endure. A derangement of the female organs developed nervous prostration and a serious kidney trouble. The doctor attended me for a year, but I kept getting worse, until I was unable to do anything, and I made up my mind I could not live. I finally decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a last resort, and I am to-day a well woman. I cannot praise it too highly, and I tell every suffering woman about my case." Mrs. Emma Sawyer, Conyers, Ga.

The Secret of Good Coffee

Even the best housekeepers cannot make a good cup of coffee without good material. Dirty, adulterated and queerly blended coffee such as unscrupulous dealers shovel over their counters won't do. But take the pure, clean, natural flavored

LION COFFEE, the leader of all package coffees—the coffee that for over a quarter of a century has been daily welcomed in millions of homes—and you will make a drink fit for a king in this way:

HOW TO MAKE GOOD COFFEE.

Use LION COFFEE, because to get best results you must use the best coffee.
Grind your LION COFFEE rather fine. Use "a tablespoonful to each cup, and one extra for the pot." First mix it with a little cold water, enough to make a thick paste, and add white of an egg (if egg is to be used as a settler), then follow one of the following rules:

1st. WITH BOILING WATER. Add boiling water, and let it boil THREE MINUTES ONLY. Add a little cold water and set aside five minutes to settle. Serve promptly.

2d. WITH COLD WATER. Add your cold water to the paste and bring it to a boil. Then set aside, add a little cold water, and in five minutes it's ready to serve.

3 DON'TS
(Don't boil it too long.
(Don't let it stand more than ten minutes before serving.
(Don't use water that has been boiled before.

TWO WAYS TO SETTLE COFFEE.

1st. With Eggs. Use part of the white of an egg, mixing it with the ground LION COFFEE before boiling.

2d. With Cold Water instead of eggs. After boiling add a dash of cold water, and set aside for eight or ten minutes, then serve through a strainer.

Insist on getting a package of genuine LION COFFEE, prepare it according to this recipe and you will only use LION COFFEE in future. (Sold only in 1 lb. sealed packages.)
(Lion-head on every package.)
(Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.)

"Where Ignorance Is Bliss 'Tis Folly to Be Wise"

In some parts of the world they still use a sharp stick and a cow to plough their fields and goodness only knows how they can ever make that kind of agriculture pay, even where labor is cheap.

In many parts of this glorious up-to-date country the women still make abject slaves of themselves over the wash-tub, the same as their great, great grandmothers did more than a century ago.

In the one instance, the antiquated heathen doesn't know a plough from a pumpkin and would be afraid to use one if he did.

On the other hand, what shall we say of a woman of the present day who clings to the old method of washing clothes when the small sum necessary to buy a Majestic Rotary Washing Machine will save her labor, time, money and fatigue and give the most absolute satisfaction in every way.

Breaking It Gently.

He is a rather serious minded boy who has more sense of responsibility than many grown persons. So when he was sent to his grandmother's to break the news of her aged sister's death he did so with much gravity and no little self importance.

"Now, Alfred," his mother said, "you mustn't tell grandma suddenly, because it might shock her, even though she knew Aunt Martha was ill. Tell it to her gently."

"All right," assented Alfred, starting out on his mission with mingled solemnity and eagerness.

Arrived at his grandmother's house, he greeted her with a sober "Hello!" and then proceeded to "break the news" by saying:

"Aunt Maria's dead, grandma, but you mustn't feel bad, 'cause she was pretty old, anyhow. You'll be the next one, I s'pose."—Brooklyn Life.

HAY FEVER FOY 27 YEARS.

Well Known New England Women Cured of Hay Fever—Cure Was Lasting.

The thousands of discouraged people who dread the approach of summer because they have hay fever and cannot find any relief from it, will read with interest and gratitude the following statement from Helen S. Williams, of Mansfield, Mass.

"For 27 years, from the month of August until heavy frost, have been afflicted with hay fever, growing worse and worse each year, until of late years I was unable to attend to my work during that period.

"Last summer I fortunately gave Hyomei a trial, and I am happy to say that it entirely cured me, and I have had no occurance of the disease since."

The letter is only one of many that have come to the proprietors of Hyomei, and the results following this treatment have been so remarkable that it is proposed at the annual convention of hay fever sufferers to recommend Hyomei.

By breathing the germ-killing and healing balsams of Hyomei, anyone can have at any moment of the day, either in their home or office, a climate like that of the White Mountains.

The complete outfit costs but $1, extra bottles 50cents. L. Taggart agrees to refund the money to any hay fever sufferer who uses Hyomei without benefit.
